GREETINGS TO THE CLASS OF 2025

Dear Graduates,

One hundred and sixty years ago, Cornell University was founded with the heady ambition “to be a university where any person can find instruction in any study”; a place that would, as Ezra Cornell put it, “fit the youth of our country... for mastering all the practical questions of life with success and honor.”

Cornell has been called the first truly American university: the first university established with a fundamental commitment to America’s founding vision, where anyone, whatever their race or religion, background or resources, gender or politics, could learn together; where how far you could go and what you achieved were not determined by where you started, but by your talent and initiative. Our founders envisioned a university that would place no limits on what could be taught or who could learn; where the freedom to explore would come hand in hand with a responsibility to advance our academic mission and uphold our democratic values.

Together with your classmates and as part of our broader Cornell community, you have lived, over these past years, in an academic community of curiosity and exploration, freedom and responsibility. In the years ahead, may all of you bring the values and lessons of your Cornell educations out into the world with you: carrying forth both the knowledge, and the ethos you have gained here, with success and with honor.

Congratulations to you all.
