PARTNERING WITH HUFPI

A World of Opportunity

Our Work

The Harvard Undergraduate Foreign Policy Initiative (HUFPI) is a student-led nonprofit organization at Harvard University whose mission is to train the next generation of leaders in diplomacy, defense, national security, intelligence, and international development.

Founded in 2019, HUFPI aims to center diverse student perspectives in foreign policy decision-making and build a coalition of young change-makers in national security. Our membership is composed of 100+ Harvard undergraduates, with alumni graduating as Rhodes, Marshall, Schwarzman, and Carnegie scholars.

HUFPI spearheads semesterly research programs in which Harvard students, paired with mentors from the commissioning organizations, engage in critical policy research for influential institutions and companies ranging from the U.S. Department of State to U.S. Cyber Command to Meta.

Beyond Harvard's campus, HUFPI's mission extends to introducing future diplomats from around the world to foreign policy through high school conferences and intercollegiate foreign summits. Through their research projects, our scholars explore diverse topic offerings in the foreign policy field.

A Global Network of Partners Who Trust Our Research

HUFPI members have hands-on foreign policy and international business experience. Projects include a diverse range of customers ranging from U.S. and foreign government agencies to NGOs and private corporations. Each engagement bolsters institutional knowledge and contributes to a growing wealth of global client experience.

Delivering Results

Whether on the battlefield, in the boardroom, or at the negotiation table, our teams have delivered differentiated insights and strategic results to world governments, international bodies, and private organizations for 6+ years. Our work has supported the warfighter, the intelligence officer, the diplomat, the aid worker, and the businessman. And we're always ready for the next challenge.

We benefit from access to:

- Faculty advisors from the Harvard Kennedy School, Government, and Economics departments
- Access to Harvard Research Centers, staffed by world-class faculty and staff
- Harvard's global network of alumni in diplomacy, consulting, and international development

Deliverables include:

- Policy memos and white papers
- Market and stakeholder analyses
- Strategic analysis and implementation frameworks
