What does Fenway CDC do?

Fenway Community Development Corporation is a non-profit organization that develops affordable housing, provides programs that enrich lives, and strengthen the voices of community members.

What did we work on?

Spend time with seniors

Fenway CDC has low-income senior housing that hosts events for its residents such as Movie Mondays and Coffee & Chat. Volunteers can attend these events and provide company to the senior residents of this building.

Goose Education Campaign

The FCDC is running a goose control education campaign to encourage people in the Fenway area to stop feeding geese. Volunteers can help create and distribute flyers for the campaign.

Administrative Work
Volunteers for Fenway CDC will also do some administrative work such as creating flyers and brochures about certain community events, campaigns and committees.

BPDA Data Analysis

Volunteers can help create reports on Fenway neighborhood related data. Such as, results from the BPDA report on the 2018-2022 American Community Survey.

Attend Events

Fenway CDC has a lot of fun, charitable events to take part in like an arts and crafts group, food distribution, fitness training and more!

Connections between class and volunteering!

Fenway CDC's mission connected to our discussions on housing and the difficulty faced by low-income community members. This organization provided low-income people with helpful and free programs, affordable housing, and other events.
