

Marc Frey

PhD Candidate
University of Windsor

Marc Frey is a Social Psychology PhD candidate at the University of Windsor. He has experience consulting and collaborating with individuals from various institutions and fields; where he assists in research methodology, program evaluation, data analysis and questionnaire design.

His research interests include methods to optimize data quality (e.g., questionnaire design), as well as determining ideal conditions for data analysis. Marc is also involved with research in education, health and I/O psychology.