Executive Summary

Overview

The Arkansas Education Freedom Accounts (EFA) program grew substantially in the 2025–26 school year, the first year of universal eligibility. Participation, the number of school partners, and the number of service providers all increased as the program matured. This growth was accompanied by encouraging indicators of family satisfaction, school retention, and student performance. The program also represented a larger, though still modest, share of the state’s K–12 education investment.

Participation and Access

Participation in the EFA program increased substantially, from 14,256 students in the 2024–25 school year to 44,524 in 2025–26. Of these students, 26,688 (59.94 percent) attended private schools, 16,541 (37.15 percent) were homeschooled, and 1,295 (just under 3 percent) attended microschools. Participants were supported by a growing ecosystem of 157 partner private schools and 108 partner microschools, as well as approved curricula, tutoring, enrichment, and supplies for homeschool families. The program also served many students with special needs, who accounted for 16.3 percent of all EFA recipients and 21.4 percent of participants attending microschools.

Retention and Family Experience

Retention from 2024–25 to 2025–26 was strong: 95.8 percent of EFA students previously in grades K–11 continued in the program. On an enrollment-weighted basis, participating private schools retained 83.8 percent of their EFA students. The school-level rate includes students who left after graduating or completing the highest grade offered by their school. Families reported improvements in platform reliability, guidance, and communication.

Use of Funds and Marketplace

Spending largely covered tuition and core educational services, while program flexibility allowed homeschool families to customize their children's education. Funding was managed through the ClassWallet parent portal. The portal's Marketplace continued to diversify, with 3,200 approved vendors and service providers offering instructional materials, therapies, enrichment, and tutoring consistent with program guidelines.

Student Achievement

Students in grades K–12 completed either a nationally norm-referenced assessment (e.g., NWEA MAP, ITBS, or Stanford 10) or the Arkansas criterion-referenced ATLAS assessment. Private-school students were assessed by their schools, while homeschool and microschool students were assessed in accordance with program requirements. All EFA participants must take a nationally norm-referenced test or ATLAS in key subjects, including math and reading, although exemptions may apply to students with exceptionalities and students in grades 11 and 12.

On nationally normed assessments, EFA students in private-school and homeschool settings scored, on average, at the 62nd percentile in math and the 66th percentile in reading. Private-school students scored at the 60th percentile in math and the 63rd percentile in reading; homeschool and microschool students scored at the 65th percentile in math and the 70th percentile in reading. A percentile rank indicates the percentage of students in the national norm group whose scores a student equaled or exceeded. For example, a score at the 62nd percentile means that the student scored as well as or better than 62 percent of the national norm group.

Outlook for the Arkansas EFA

For the 2026–27 school year, 65,036 students applied to participate in the EFA program, and 55,649 were approved. As of September 15, 49,773 students had received funding, with additional awards expected. The program’s provider network includes 167 approved private schools, 156 approved microschools, and more than 3,200 approved vendors.

Approved students in 2026–27 will receive a base award of $7,208, while former SUCCEED Scholarship participants will receive $8,011. Program enhancements for 2026–27 included expanded Direct Pay capacity, improved status visibility and communications, stronger assessment data quality, and continued support for instructional, tutoring, therapy, and enrichment uses aligned with success-ready outcomes.

As the program continues to scale, the Department of Education has set priorities to improve user experience with clearer guidance, faster service, and greater transparency in decision making.

Introduction

Report Overview

The Arkansas Department of Education (ADE) is required by Arkansas Code § 6-18-2510 to provide the Arkansas Legislative Council and the House and Senate Education Committees with an annual report on the Education Freedom Accounts (EFA) program. To fulfill this requirement, ADE collaborated with the University of Arkansas Department of Education Reform to prepare this report. This report covers July 1, 2025, through June 30, 2026, the third year of program implementation. As stipulated in Arkansas Code § 6-18-2510, the report includes the following:

1. The total number of students currently participating in the program;
2. A list of all participating schools and participating service providers;
3. The total student enrollment of each participating school and the percentage of the total enrollment of each school represented by participating students;
4. Aggregated test result data for participating students for the 2025–26 school year;
5. The percentage of funds used for each type of qualifying expense;
6. An analysis of the program’s fiscal impact;
7. The retention rates for participating students enrolled in participating schools;
8. The results of a parental satisfaction survey that shall be administered by the department; and
9. Other relevant data as determined by the Department.

Education Freedom Accounts Overview

The Arkansas Education Freedom Accounts (EFA) program launched in the 2023–24 school year to expand educational options for Arkansas families. As an education savings account (ESA) program, it allows participating families to use program funds for a range of approved educational products and services from multiple providers.

The EFA is part of Arkansas LEARNS (Literacy, Empowerment, Accountability, Readiness, Networking, and School Safety), a comprehensive education reform package enacted in spring 2023. Although all first-time kindergarten students have been eligible since the program's launch, eligibility expanded in phases from selected groups of students to all K–12 students. In the 2025–26 school year, all Arkansas K–12 students became eligible to participate in the EFA program.

The number of students receiving EFA program funds rose from 5,548 in its first year, 2023–24, to 14,256 in its second year, 2024–25, when qualifying homeschool students became eligible for EFA awards. In 2025–26, the program's third year of operation, all K–12 students in Arkansas became eligible to receive either $6,864 or $7,627, with the higher amount reserved for students who previously participated in the SUCCEED Scholarship Program. SUCCEED Scholarship recipients include students with special needs, students in foster care, and children of uniformed service members. Students concurrently enrolled in a public school cannot receive an EFA award. During the 2025–26 school year, 44,524 Arkansas students actively participated in the EFA program.

Families receive approved funds through the ClassWallet online platform, a secure digital accounts-payable system. They may use EFA funds for qualified K–12 educational expenses, including private-school tuition and fees, curricula, tutoring, therapy, testing, enrichment, transportation, and dual enrollment. Seventy-eight percent of funds were distributed through Direct Pay, 11.26 percent through the Marketplace, and 10.73 percent through reimbursement.

To qualify for the 2025–26 academic year, a student must have been eligible to enroll in an Arkansas public elementary or secondary school and have a parent or legal guardian who is a current resident of the state. There were multiple application windows for approval. Within each registration window, students were prioritized according to the following criteria:

1. First-time kindergarten students
2. Students with special needs, including students with disabilities, students experiencing homelessness, students in foster care, and previous SUCCEED Scholarship recipients
3. Students coming from public schools rated D or F under the state accountability system
4. Students with a parent or guardian serving in the military, law enforcement, or as a first responder
5. All other eligible Arkansas students

Applications are reviewed by priority category within each application window and are not processed strictly on a first-come, first-served basis. Students must either apply as new participants or renew each year to receive funding.

Student Participation

The program's third year demonstrated strong, sustained demand for school choice and a substantial increase in participation across Arkansas. Eligibility expanded to all Arkansas students, making the EFA program the fifth of six ESA programs nationwide to achieve universal eligibility.

Participation increased from 5,548 students in 2023–24 to 14,256 in 2024–25 and 44,524 in 2025–26. Enrollment grew 212 percent from 2024–25 to 2025–26. Of the 2025–26 participants, 16,541 (37.15 percent) were homeschooled.

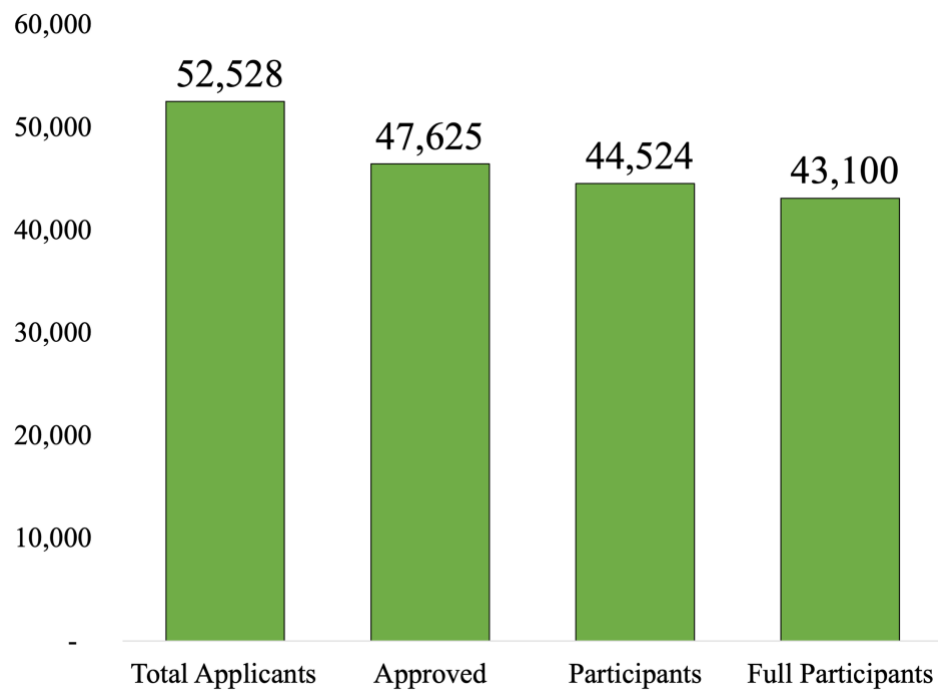

From Applicant to Active EFA Participant (Figure 1)

Although the EFA program was available to all students in Arkansas, enrollment windows dictated the order of enrollment. With universal eligibility in the 2025–26 school year, students needed to verify only that they were eligible to enroll in an Arkansas public school, that they resided in Arkansas, and that a parent or legal guardian was a legal resident of the state.

The Department of Education recommended submitting applications in window A or B to ensure a smooth process, as earlier submission guaranteed earlier review by the state. Families largely acted upon that recommendation, with 32,912 (73.9%) of the participating applicants applying in the first two windows. Upon application, parents were directed to create a FACTS online account to upload proof of age and Arkansas residency for their student. Upon approval, families set up a ClassWallet account and linked it to either a verified private school or a confirmed homeschool status.

Most EFA applications were approved (90.67 percent), nearly all approved applicants participated (93.49 percent), and nearly all participants (96.80 percent) were active throughout the school year. All eligible applicants were funded in 2025-26.

Applied (52,528)

- All EFA applications, including incomplete submissions

Approved (47,625)

- 4,903 applications were either incomplete or deemed ineligible.
- Reasons for non-approval included:
 - Failure to submit the required documentation
 - Canceled at applicant request
 - Failure to meet the eligibility criteria
- Approved applications had awards transmitted by the Department of Education

Participants (44,524)

- 3,101 approved applications did not participate in the EFA program.
- Participant count includes students who were funded in any of the four quarters and were approved and active in the EFA system. Unless otherwise noted, the student counts below represent approved, funded, and active EFA participants during 2025–26.

Full Participants (43,100)

- A total of 1,424 students received funding for only one to three quarters because they moved to another state or withdrew to enroll in a public or nonparticipating private school.
- Full participation describes students who participated in the EFA program in each of the four funding quarters.

The state distributed EFA funds in four equal quarterly installments (Table 1). Each installment was made available through the secure ClassWallet platform. The amount distributed to each participant excluded the $130 ClassWallet user fee. Families could use the funds during the 2025–26 school year or roll over unspent balances to subsequent years.

Participation Subgroups

The sex distribution of EFA participants was similar to that of Arkansas's combined public-school and EFA student population. Female students accounted for 49.6 percent of EFA participants and 48.9 percent of students statewide, while male students accounted for 50.4 percent of EFA participants and 51.1 percent statewide (Figure 2).

Table 2 presents the race or ethnicity distribution of EFA participants. White students represented 76.3 percent of EFA participants and 58.3 percent of all public-school and EFA students statewide. Black students accounted for 4.6 percent of EFA participants and 17.8 percent statewide, while Hispanic students accounted for 6.4 percent of EFA participants and 14.6 percent statewide. Asian students represented approximately 2 percent of both populations, and students of two or more races represented 6.1 percent of EFA participants and 5.4 percent statewide. Race or ethnicity was not reported for 2.9 percent of EFA participants.

Table 2: Race or Ethnicity Distribution of EFA Participants and the Statewide Student Population

Race or Ethnicity	EFA participants	EFA percent	Statewide percent
White	33,965	76%	58%
Black or African American	2,064	5%	18%
Hispanic or Latino	2,859	6%	15%

American Indian or Alaska Native	571	1%	< 1%
Middle Eastern or North African	129	< 1%
No race or ethnicity selected	1,293	3%
Total	44,524

Note: Statewide figures combine 465,421 students enrolled in Arkansas public schools with 44,524 EFA participants. Comparable public-school data are not reported separately for Middle Eastern or North African students or for students with no race or ethnicity selected; statewide percentages are therefore not shown for those categories.

Special Category Participants

Thirty-five percent (15,552) of the students participating in the EFA program were identified as belonging to at least one special category. These categories include students with special needs; children of veterans, active-duty military members, or first responders; students in foster care or experiencing homelessness; and students assigned to low-performing public schools. Students with disabilities, as identified under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), constituted the largest special-category subgroup and accounted for 16.3 percent of all EFA participants (Figure 3).

Students with disabilities also account for a substantial share of former SUCCEED Scholarship participants. However, these students are not included in the 16.3 percent because they were not required to report their disability status again when entering the EFA program. Thus, the actual proportion of EFA participants with disabilities is higher than 16.3 percent. By comparison, 15.19 percent of Arkansas K–12 students statewide have disabilities. Based on the school type reported on student applications, students with special needs accounted for 18.2 percent of private school participants, 12.9 percent of homeschool participants, and 21.4 percent of microschool participants. Specific learning disability was the most commonly reported disability classification among EFA participants, followed by autism (Table 3).

Participation by Schooling Sector

Of active EFA participants, 59.94 percent attended private schools, 37.15 percent were homeschooled, and just under 3 percent attended microschools (Figure 4). For analyses of fund use and assessment results, microschool students were included in the homeschool category.

Participation in the EFA program was higher among elementary students in grades K–6 than among secondary students in grades 7–12 (Figure 5). Kindergarten accounted for the largest share among individual grades, at 9.89 percent. Participation remained relatively high throughout the elementary grades before declining in the middle and high school grades.

School Participation

In 2025–26, the program had 265 approved private schools and microschools statewide, although not all enrolled EFA students during the year. A total of 157 private schools and 108 microschools participated in the program (Tables 4 and 5). EFA partner schools were located in 55 of Arkansas’s 75 counties, and 68.9 percent of the state fell within 15 miles of a city with an EFA school (Figure 6). In Figure 6, dark-green markers identify cities with participating schools, with marker size indicating the number of schools in each city. The light-green circles show areas within 15 miles of these locations; unshaded areas fall outside 15 miles from a private school or microschool.

Partner private schools and microschools must reapply annually to remain approved providers. As part of the application process, each school reports its projected total enrollment for the upcoming school year. Combining these projections with reported EFA enrollment makes it possible to estimate the share of each school’s enrollment represented by EFA participants (Table 6).

School Retention Rates

Entering its fourth year in 2026–27, the EFA program retained 89.5 percent of students who participated in 2025–26. At the individual school level, participating private schools retained an average of 83.8 percent of their EFA students. These unadjusted rates include students who completed the highest grade offered by their school in 2025–26 and may have left because they graduated or aged out of the grades their school served.

To better measure continued participation, we calculated retention rates excluding students who were in 12th grade in 2025–26. The resulting K–11 retention rate was 95.6 percent for private-school students and 96.7 percent for K–11th grade homeschool students (Table 7). These adjusted rates account for students expected to leave the EFA program after graduating

Qualifying Expenses

EFA funds are designed to be used only for qualifying educational expenses. The Department of Education guidelines state:

⁶ Funding totals may differ slightly across tables because the ADE collected invoices from parents and vendors through August, while the report tables were generated at different times between July 1 and August 18.

“EFA funds are for educational purposes – specifically, for items and services that directly support the student’s K–12 education. If an expense clearly supports your child’s learning, it’s likely allowed. If it’s more of a general household, recreational, or non-educational expense, it’s not allowed. Always use the mindset: ‘Would I purchase this with designated education funds?’ If unsure, get guidance from ADE.”

In addition to private-school tuition and fees, parents could use EFA funds to purchase eligible educational products and services through the ClassWallet Marketplace, Direct Pay, or reimbursement.

The Marketplace allowed parents to purchase technology, curricula, educational supplies, and services from approved vendors, subject to an eligibility review. Through Direct Pay, parents submitted itemized vendor invoices to ClassWallet, and approved payments were made directly from the student’s EFA. These payment methods were designed to reduce uncertainty about expense eligibility and minimize out-of-pocket costs.

If necessary, parents could pay out of pocket and request reimbursement by submitting an itemized receipt for review and approval. The receipt had to include the vendor description, price, and purchase date. Additional information on these payment methods is available in the ADE guidebook for parents.

Not every participant used their full EFA amount, and unspent funds can be rolled over to the next school year. At the end of the 2024–25 school year, 14,256 participants who remained active in the program rolled over $11,006,445 to the 2025-26 school year, averaging $722 per student. Slightly more than $43 million in unspent funds from the 2025-26 school year will remain available to students in 2026-27 (Table 10).

Eligible expenses included tuition and fees, uniforms, assessments, instructional materials, tutoring services, curricula, supplemental supplies, specified technology devices, transportation, and college tuition and fees. Appendix B describes each expense category and the categorization method. Most funds (67.34 percent) paid tuition and fees to partner schools, while curriculum was the second-largest category (12.02 percent). Together, tuition and approved curriculum resources accounted for 79.36 percent of EFA spending (Figure 7). Tables 11 through 14 report spending by category for all EFA students, private-school students, homeschool students, and microschool students, respectively.

Participating Providers

During the third year of the EFA program, students purchased educational products and services from more than 3,000 providers. Most students paid private-school tuition through Direct Pay. Microschool tuition payments, reported within the homeschool category, may also have been made primarily through Direct Pay. Marketplace transactions were limited to approved vendors.

Families could also purchase items from vendors that were not preapproved and request reimbursement, subject to ADE review. Reimbursed purchases included items from large retailers such as Walmart, Amazon, and Barnes & Noble. Table 15 summarizes distributions to the highest-funded schools; Appendix C provides a broader list of vendors and providers.

Fiscal Impact Analysis

Understanding the fiscal impact of the Education Freedom Account (EFA) program requires distinguishing among appropriation authority, award commitments, participant transactions, and unspent balances carried forward. We report the program’s gross state commitment, estimated public school funding savings, and estimated net state fiscal impact for the 2023–24, 2024–25, and 2025–26 school years. We also compare EFA appropriation authority with the state appropriation for Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) Public School Fund programs.

In 2023–24, the state spent $37.3 million on the EFA program. In 2024–25, total program expenditures were $93.8 million.⁸ For 2025–26, we use $307.6 million in preliminary gross

⁷ Amount is $36,225 lower than the total amount spent due to rolling invoice collection. Table 15 report generated July 21, 2026.

⁸ Arkansas Legislative Audit separately reported $93.1 million in EFA grant disbursements for fiscal year 2025, a narrower audited measure. Arkansas Bureau of Legislative Research, 2025–2027 Department of Education budget manual, BF9 historical data (FY2024 actual $37.3 million); Arkansas Department of Education, 2024–25 EFA award commitments as the program’s gross cost measure. This amount reflects funds deposited in or reserved for EFA accounts, including unspent balances carried into 2026–27.

To place the program’s scale in context, Arkansas appropriated $3.5 billion for DESE Public School Fund programs in fiscal year 2026 and made $309.5 million in appropriation authority available for the EFA program.⁹ Together, these appropriations totaled $3.8 billion. The EFA program represented 8.1 percent of the combined amount, while EFA participants accounted for 8.7 percent of the 509,945 students served across the public-school and EFA sectors (44,524 EFA participants and 465,421 public-school students).

EFA Switchers and Estimated State Savings

As EFA eligibility expanded to universal eligibility, it is important to assess how many participating students switched from public schools to private schools or homeschooling. Classifying kindergarten students is difficult because most were not enrolled in public, private, or home schools during the year before receiving EFA funds. Although some attended public prekindergarten, we cannot determine with certainty how many would otherwise have enrolled in public kindergarten and should therefore be classified as switchers. Table 16 reports switcher rates by grade.

Program Annual Report; and Arkansas Legislative Audit, FY2025 Statewide Single Audit (reports $93.1 million in EFA grant disbursements).

⁹ Arkansas Bureau of Legislative Research, FY2026 Education—Public School Fund agency budget summary (total appropriation $3.5 billion); FY2026 Arkansas Department of Education—Operations agency budget summary (EFA appropriation $277.5 million); Arkansas DESE, request for \$32 million additional EFA appropriation; and Arkansas DESE, Funding Data.

Total	40,117	10,358	25.82%

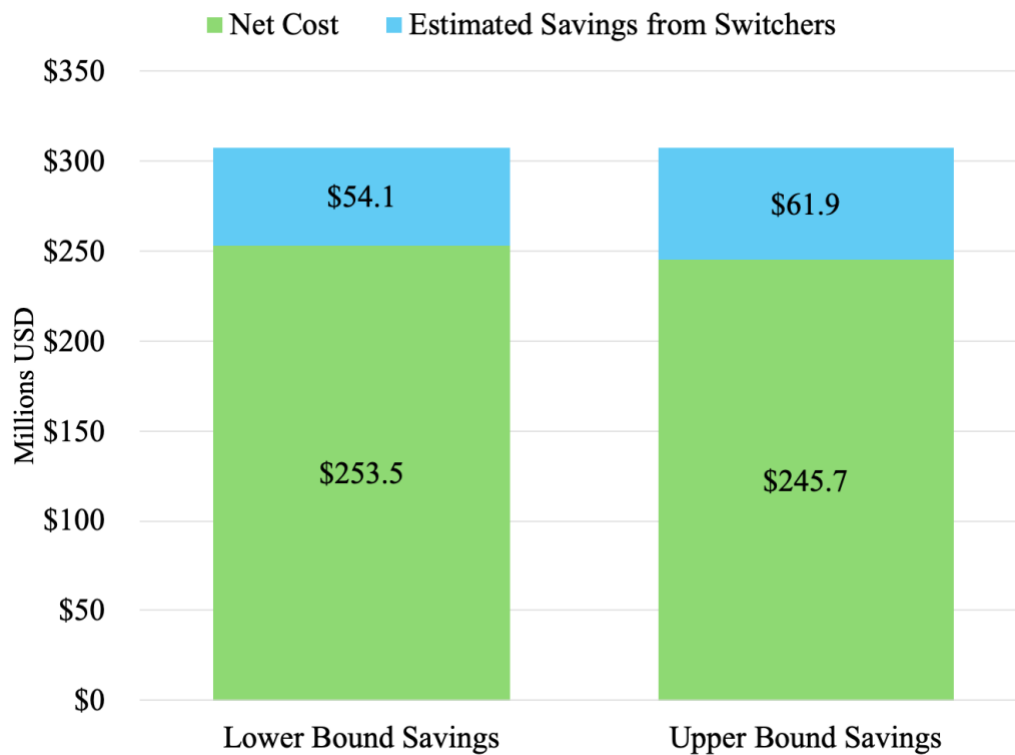

Note: Two applications did not include a grade level and therefore are omitted.

Students who leave a public school to participate in the EFA program are referred to here as “switchers.” These students affect the fiscal estimate differently from participants who were already enrolled in private school or homeschool because their departure can reduce future state formula funding for public schools. We therefore subtract estimated public school funding savings from gross EFA commitments when estimating the program’s net state fiscal impact.

Because Arkansas public-school funding is based primarily on prior-year average daily membership, savings attributable to 2025–26 switchers will be reflected principally in 2026–27 state aid. We estimated savings for each switcher using the funding associated with the student’s resident school district. The lower-bound estimate treats every switcher as a general-population student who would not have generated additional categorical funding. The upper-bound estimate assumes that switchers resemble the average student in their resident districts and would have generated the districts’ average per-pupil categorical aid.

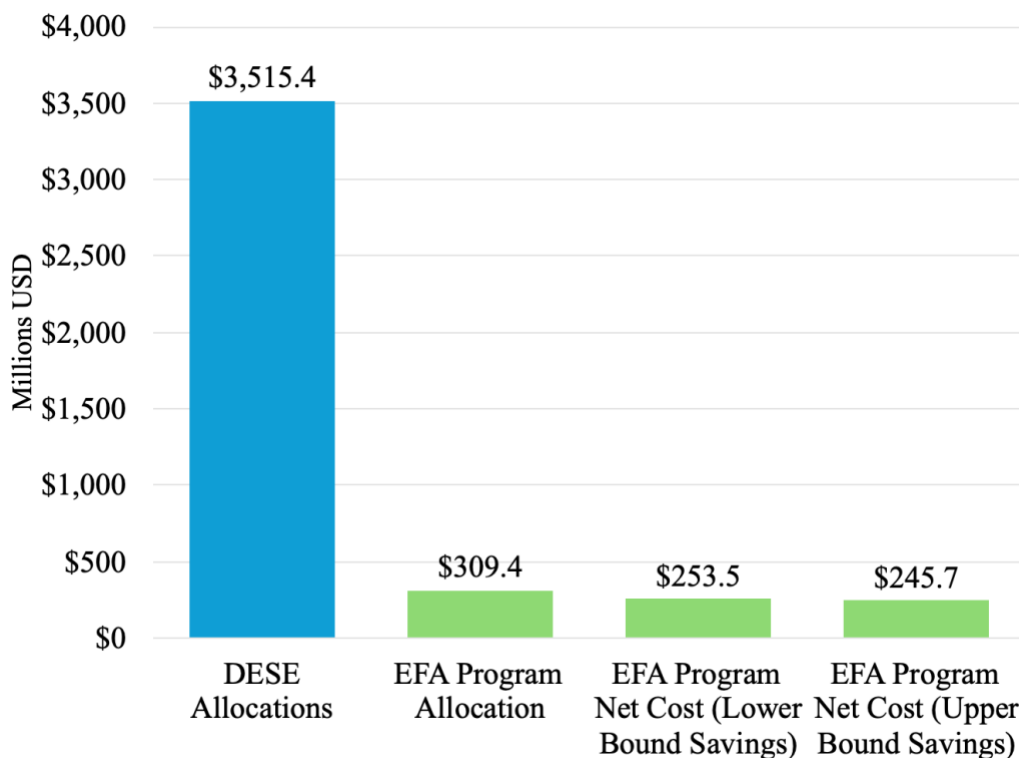

After applying the statutory declining-enrollment adjustment, these assumptions produce estimated public school funding savings ranging from $54.1 million under the lower-bound estimate to $61.9 million under the upper-bound estimate. Subtracting these savings from gross EFA commitments produces an estimated net state fiscal impact of $253.5 million under the lower-savings estimate and $245.7 million under the upper-savings estimate.¹⁰ Figures 8 and 9 summarize the net-impact range and the program’s gross allocation and estimated net cost relative to public-school funding allocations.

Figure 8: Estimated Net State Cost of the 2025–26 EFA Program Based on Gross Commitments of $307.6 Million

¹⁰ Switcher status is observed for students with prior public-school enrollment. For kindergarteners, the lower estimate counts only students verified as having attended public pre-K; the upper estimate applies the public-school enrollment rate of first-grade EFA participants. The state-aid estimates apply the current Arkansas funding formula, including the declining-enrollment adjustment.

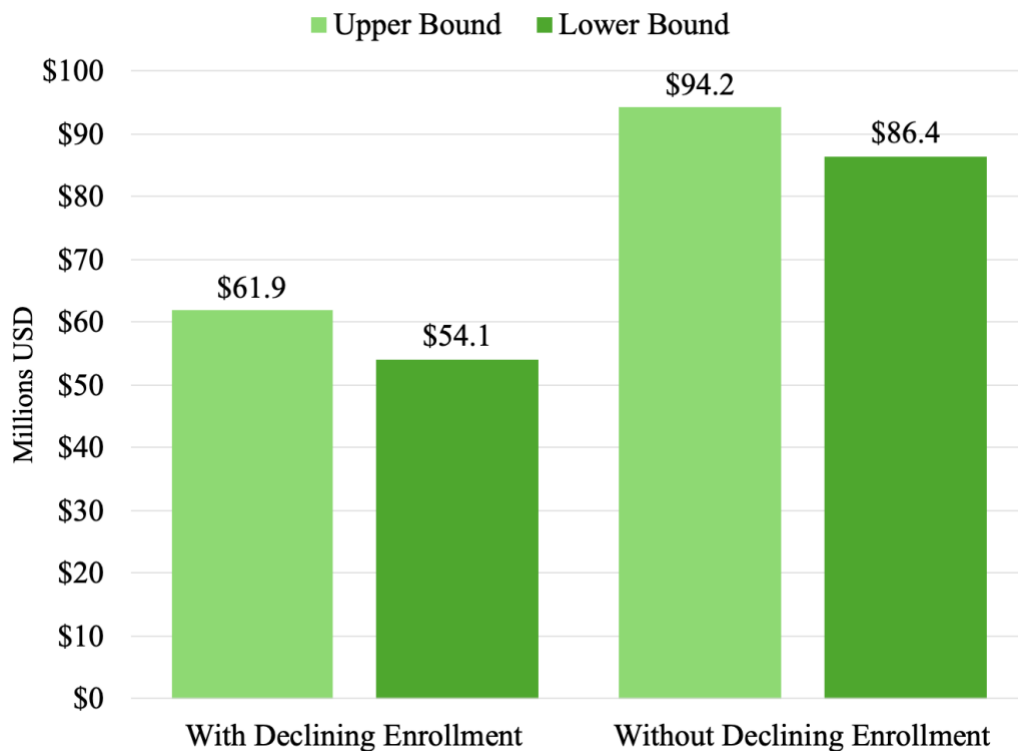

Figure 9: 2025–26 EFA Program Cost Compared with Arkansas Public K–12 Funding

Arkansas’s public-school funding formula includes a declining-enrollment adjustment that partially offsets reductions in state aid for districts experiencing enrollment losses.¹¹ Because this adjustment will apply when 2026–27 state aid is calculated, our primary savings estimates above incorporate it. Without the adjustment, the estimated reduction would range from $86.4 million to $94.2 million (Figure 10). The estimates without the adjustment are presented to give a sense of the longer-term annual savings that will result from 2025–26 switchers.

The total number of students within a district who receive public funding for their education includes both students enrolled in a traditional public school or public charter school and students enrolled in a choice school using EFA funds. Figure 11 maps EFA participants as a percentage of all publicly funded students in each district.

Assessment

All students participating in the EFA program are required by state law to take an annual assessment to measure academic progress in key subjects. Tests must measure achievement in both mathematics and reading as applicable to their grade level. There are two main options to satisfy this requirement:

Option 1: Take the state's grade-level assessment (the ATLAS or a college readiness assessment). This should be administered in coordination with the ADE.

Option 2: Take a nationally norm-referenced test approved by the ADE for this purpose.

Norm-referenced tests include the Iowa Test of Basic Skills (ITBS), Stanford

Achievement Test, TerraNova, MAP Growth (NWEA), the California Achievement Test (CAT), or college readiness entrance examinations including the ACT, SAT, or CLT (Classic Learning Test).

If a student is enrolled in a private school, the school administers and reports the assessment. If a student is homeschooled or enrolled in a microschool, the parent is responsible for administering and reporting it. Table 17 lists the most commonly administered assessments and the average national percentile ranks for all EFA students. Table 18 provides results for private-school students, and Table 19 provides results for homeschool students.

National percentile ranks compare a student with the national norm group for the same grade and subject. A student at the 60th percentile scored as well as or better than 60 percent of students in that norm group. The ranks below therefore support comparisons across EFA populations and national peers, but they should not be interpreted as proficiency rates.

ATLAS gives EFA students the opportunity to take the same statewide assessment administered to most Arkansas public-school students. Because ATLAS is not administered nationally, it is a criterion-referenced rather than a nationally norm-referenced assessment. Criterion-referenced tests evaluate mastery of specific learning standards; norm-referenced tests compare performance with a peer group. Arkansas reports state percentile ranks for ATLAS, but these should not be interpreted as national percentile ranks.

¹³ ATLAS percentiles reported are state percentiles, useful for understanding how EFA students performed compared to peers within the state.

Assessment Summary

Schools and families report tests to the ADE using nationally normed percentiles¹⁴ or, in the case of the ATLAS test, state percentile rankings. A total of 38,893 assessments were submitted to meet the EFA requirement. Of these, 38,250 included reportable percentile ranks for aggregation. Private-school students submitted 23,234 assessments, 22,591 of which included reportable percentile ranks. Homeschool and microschool students submitted 15,659 assessments with reportable percentile ranks. The tables report all submitted assessments, including those without percentile ranks. On average, EFA students scored at the 62nd percentile in math and the 66th percentile in reading, meaning they performed as well or better than 62 percent of the students in math and 66 percent of students in reading on nationally norm-referenced assessments (Table 17).

ATLAS scores are of particular interest. Between the 2024–25 and 2025–26 school years, Arkansas saw modest increases in subject mastery as public-school educators adjusted to the second year of the ATLAS assessment. Gains were most notable in math and science, although reading improved as well. In aggregate, homeschool students kept pace with the growth in public schools and performed as well as or better than their public-school peers in both math and reading.

When disaggregated by sector:

- Private-school EFA students scored at the 60th percentile in math and the 63rd percentile in reading (Table 18).

¹⁴ Students who did not report valid national percentile ranks include some data entry errors, reports of grade-level equivalents or other non-percentile measures, a small number of 11th-12th grade students who were not required to test, students granted a state-approved exemption, and students who left or planned to leave the program and may not have provided valid results. Efforts were made to correct errors and omissions where possible.

- Homeschooled and microschool students scored at the 65th percentile in math and the 70th percentile in reading (Table 19).

Microschool students' scores are reported with the homeschool results. The combined totals include 1,117 microschool students who took nationally normed assessments. Although sample sizes by individual test were too small to report, Table 20 presents average percentile ranks for microschool students.

Parent Motivations and Satisfaction

Families completed surveys about their reasons for applying to the EFA program, their experience with the application and ClassWallet, and their engagement in their children's education. The 2025–26 application survey provides information about families' motivations for seeking an EFA. The 2026–27 survey captures families' experiences with the program after participating during the prior year.

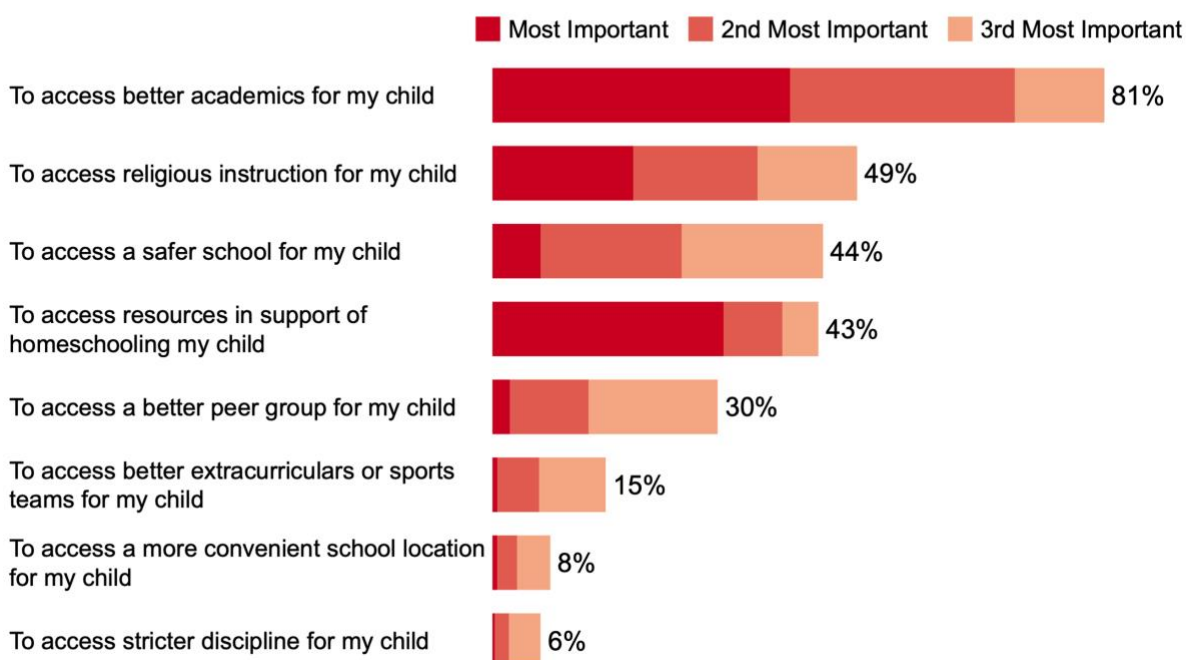

Figure 12 shows the reasons families ranked as their three most important reasons for applying. Each bar reports the percentage of respondents who included that reason anywhere among their top three, while the colored segments indicate whether they ranked it first, second, or third. Because respondents could select as many as three reasons, the percentages across reasons do not sum to 100 percent. Better academics was the most frequently selected reason, appearing among the top three choices of 81 percent of respondents. It was followed by religious instruction at 49 percent, a safer school at 44 percent, and resources supporting homeschooling at 43 percent. Better academics and homeschooling resources were also the reasons most frequently ranked as the single most important.

Figure 12: Reasons for Applying to Participate in the 2025–26 EFA

What were your top three reasons for applying to the Education Freedom Accounts Program?

38,156 respondents

Parents were asked several questions about their experience with the EFA application process. They answered each question using a five-point scale consisting of two negative responses, one neutral response, and two positive responses. In each graph, the colored segments show the percentage of respondents selecting each option. Red-toned segments represent negative responses, gray represents the neutral response, and blue-toned segments represent positive responses. The percentages displayed at the left and right ends of each bar report the combined shares of negative and positive responses, respectively.

Responses were largely positive. Figures 13–17 show parents’ responses to several questions. The question wording and number of respondents appear at the top of each figure.

2026–27 EFA Program Enhancements

- Establishment of a dedicated customer service team to provide more timely responses and specialized support for participant inquiries.
- Expansion of the payment request feature to all approved vendors, helping streamline transactions and reduce payment processing timelines.
- Publication of pricing guidance for families and vendors to improve understanding of cost expectations and promote consistency in reimbursement decisions.
- Implementation of a formal reevaluation process that allows participants to request an independent review of denied transactions.
- Modernization of the preapproval process to provide clearer expectations and more efficient determinations regarding potential expenses.
- Expansion of self-service resources, including updated FAQs, guidance documents, and instructional materials, to help families understand requirements before submitting transactions.

Office of School Choice and Parent Empowerment

The Arkansas Department of Education’s (ADE) Office of School Choice and Parent Empowerment (OSCPE) is responsible for planning, implementing, and monitoring the Education Freedom Accounts (EFA) program, as well as overseeing the ADE’s broader school choice initiatives. The following principles guide the Office of School Choice and Parent Empowerment’s work:

- Empower parents to make the best school choice for their children
- Expand educational opportunities and access for Arkansas families
- Support high-quality school options
- Balance accountability with flexibility
- Ensure strong fiscal stewardship of public funds
- Use data to inform rulemaking

OSCPE is pleased to partner with the University of Arkansas Department of Education Reform to report on the third year of the EFA program, which expanded substantially in participation and reach. OSCPE leads policy, operations, and family support for the program, including developing a statewide marketplace of schools and providers; onboarding and monitoring participants; safeguarding public funds; and publishing guidance and data to support informed choices. Arkansas is one of six states with universal program eligibility, enabling families to use EFAs for private-school or home education. This report reflects OSCPE's core work: expanding high-quality options, ensuring program integrity, and making school choice more accessible and transparent for Arkansas families.

University of Arkansas Department of Education Reform

As Arkansas's flagship institution, the U of A provides an internationally competitive education across more than 200 academic programs. Founded in 1871, the U of A contributes more than \$3 billion to Arkansas's economy through teaching, entrepreneurship and job development, research and creative activity, and training for professional disciplines. The Carnegie Foundation classifies the U of A among the few U.S. colleges and universities with the highest level of research activity. U.S. News & World Report ranks the U of A among the top public universities in the nation. See how the U of A works to build a better world at Arkansas Research and Economic Development News.

The College of Education and Health Professions established the Department of Education Reform in 2005. The department's mission is to advance education and economic development by focusing on the improvement of academic achievement in elementary and secondary schools. It conducts research and demonstration projects in five primary areas: teacher quality, leadership, policy, accountability and transparency, and school choice.

The School Choice Demonstration Project (SCDP), based in the Department of Education Reform, is an education research initiative devoted to the nonpartisan study of the effects of school choice policy. Staffed by leading school choice researchers and scholars and led by Dr. Patrick J. Wolf, SCDP's national team of researchers, institutional partners, and staff conducts rigorous evaluations of school choice programs and other school improvement efforts nationwide. SCDP is committed to advancing the public's understanding of the strengths and limitations of school choice policies and programs through comprehensive research on what happens to students, families, schools, and communities when more parents can choose their child's school.
